

Security

At Support IT we take security very seriously. Ensuring the security of your computer systems is a key part of our responsibilities as your IT support provider. Our security consultants continually undergo security training to keep our customers advised of current risks.

Support IT will ensure that your data and systems both internally and externally are protected from attack. Many organizations struggle with deciding how much investment is needed to protect their networks and reduce business risk.

There are costs associated with these decisions, and keeping them to a minimum contributes to profitability.

To arrive at the right level of investment required to achieve basic protection from threats and maximise profitability a number of factors need to be considered.

Support IT will assist you considering the following:

Have the weakest, most vulnerable areas been addressed to minimize the potential for disruptions? How can you leverage what you have in place today and get the most value for your investment? Are the proposed processes too complex and time-consuming for your staff resources? Are prospective solutions reasonable and comparable to those of organisations with similar requirements?

Support IT can assist you to formulate an approach that will support advanced security and availability requirements, our trained security experts will take you through the various aspects that need to be considered putting forward an action-plan to reach your required level of protection.
